India is a country of festivals. Everyday here seems like a festival. All the festivals have their own religious importance but I like Diwali the most. It is called the festival of light. The season of celebration of Diwali is that lord Ramchandra returned to Ayodhya on this day after completing 14 years' 'Vanvaas'. So, in the happiness of returning of Ram, the inhabitants of Ayodhya had lighted mud lamps (Ghatis). The festival is symbol of victory of light over darkness.

Reference:-

These lines have been taken from the poem 'The Lotus' which is composed by famous poet 'Tokei Dutt'.

Context:-

In this stanza the poet shows the superiority of lotus flower as Indian culture on rose & lily as western cultures.

Explanation:-

In these lines the poet says that when Cupid was confused in choosing the queenliest flower, the goddess Flora gave him the flower of 'lotus' because it had both qualities of 'Rose-red' & 'Lily white'. The meaning of the poet is here that Indian culture is superior than western culture because it has all qualities of every culture & western cultures have bad qualities with good ones.
