Subject - about the bad Condition of Street lights
in Ganesha Nagar, Jaipur

Sir,

I am a resident of Ganesha Nagar, Jaipur. Through the columns of your esteemed newspaper, I would like to draw the kind attention of concerned authorities about the street lights that are not in working condition for many days in our locality. The condition of street lights are very miserable in our locality. There are total darkness in night. The incidents of theft and vehicle accidents are increasing day by day in our locality.

This is sheer carelessness of the concerned department. There is no response of the complaints of the local body. The residents are facing a lot of problems.

(11) The Rattrap Seller was a tall man. His cheeks were sunken and hunger gleamed in his eyes. His clothes were in rags. He was selling the rattraps of wires. His business was not profitable. So, he had to resort to begging and petty theivery also. He was a peddler who had not a house. His life was so sad and monotonous. He thought that this world is also a big rattrap which offers baits to the people. At end, Edda who was daughter of a famous Ironmaster changed the peddler into a gentleman. On the first time, the peddler felt that there were some kind and agreeable faces also in the world. Through the rattrap, the Moral is that only love can change the people.

(13) Hint - Perhaps the Earth ----- I will go

Reference - These lines have been taken from the poem, "Keeping Quiet" composed by 'Pablo Neruda'. Pablo Neruda won the Noble Prize for literature in the year 1971.

Context - In these lines the poet tells us about the importance of keeping quiet and quiet introspection through the example of Earth. He says that it will be a exotic moment and a peaceful Environment.

Explanation - In these lines the poet wants to say that The Earth seems dead in autumn but in spring, it becomes full of life. That poet tells that quiet introspection does not mean death. It will be an opportunity to think over our activities.
