Importance of Tree Plantation

1+1+2+2+1
(5)

It is completely true that trees are the main component of an ecosystem. Trees give us oxygen by the process of photosynthesis and make our life healthy and harmonious. They not only give us oxygen but also they consume carbon dioxide present in environment which decreases the level of pollution and global warming. A surrounding can be made free by planting trees in more amount as a tree provides a man cool climate and shady boom. In present world many diseases are spreading due to pollution and harmful gases and tree plantation is the element which can eradicate this problem. So we have to do tree planting every year as our wish. A mankind environment can be made by planting trees and by spreading the importance of trees on our earth. As said trees are the true friend which make us healthy by physically and mentally and teach us how to make our environment good.

Reference :- These beautiful lines are taken from the poem 'My Mother at Sixty-six' composed by a south Indian poetess Kamala Das (Madhavikutty).

Context :- In this stanza poetess describes her feeling on departure from her mother and expresses her childhood fear.

Explanation :- The poetess says that when she is going for security check at airport then she looks at her mother standing a few yards away and she expresses it in this manner. Her mother's face looks her worn means brightless, pale means dull without glow as a late winter's moon. Here, poetess compares her mother's face with late winter's moon as late winter means winter at its peak and in the winter moon is covered by fog, humidity & smoke of atmosphere which seems it like dull without glow.

Also her mother is in her old age. Her mother's face has old age wrinkles which makes it worn, brightless and inactive. By thinking these thoughts she reminds her childhood fear (that is to lose her mother). A child has always fear of losing her mother or separating from her. By all this she thinks her mother's death is not so far so at last she says see you soon Amma that shows her wish to meet her mother again. To hide her grief she only smiles.

Critical appreciation:- (i) Use of 'Simile' in 'as a late winter's moon'.

(ii) Use of 'Repetition' in 'smile and smile and smile...' makes the poem more beautiful in metaphorical way.

(iii) Use of 'Alliteration' in 'see you soon Amma'.

Q.14

'A Thing of beauty' is the poem which is composed in John Keats long poetic romance Endymion. In this poem a shepherd named Endymion has once a vision of Cynthia (the moon goddess). He is so attracted by her and wanders here and there in search of her but he cannot find her. Then he sits amidst between a green forest which gives him the same beauty such as the sun, the moon, the trees old and young which provide shady boons to simple sheep (In bible, simple sheep used for the ignorant & misguided people), daffodils, cleave streams, mid forest beaks with rose blooms, the grandeur dooms of martyrs and all lovely tales that put away the core of sadness from us and make the despondence, inhumanity, death of noble natures, overdarken & unhealthy ways away from us & give us a deep sleep, mental relax and good health. A Thing of beauty is an immortal drink which flows on to us from heaven's brink.
